How to Use Audio and or Video Feedback for Students in Blackboard

Benefits to using Audio and/or Video to provide feedback to students include the following: improves student response to feedback; makes grading more efficient; and improves instructor-student relationship.

Instructors can add audio and/or video feedback for students (i.e. Assignments, Discussion) using the Content Editor option under “Feedback to Learner.”

You can find the recording option in the editor of the Feedback area for graded items

- Select the “Open full content editor”

icon under “Feedback to Learner”

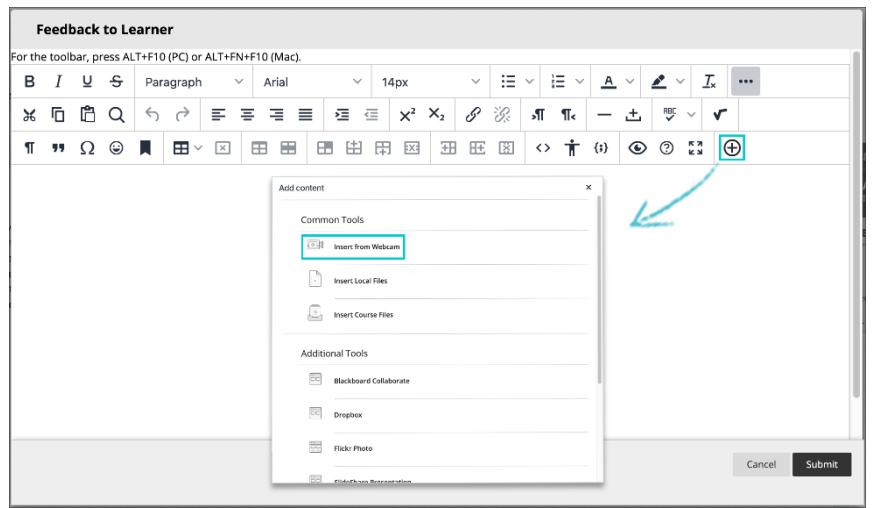

Note: If you do not see the “Feedback to Learner” option select the expand arrow in the blue area.

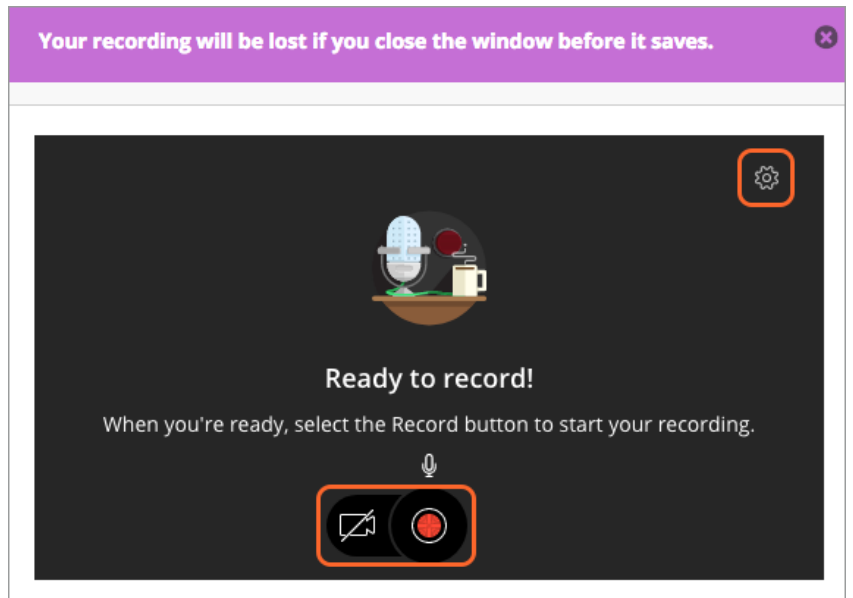

- Select the  “Add Content” icon.

This action opens a new window where you have to select the Insert from Webcam option.

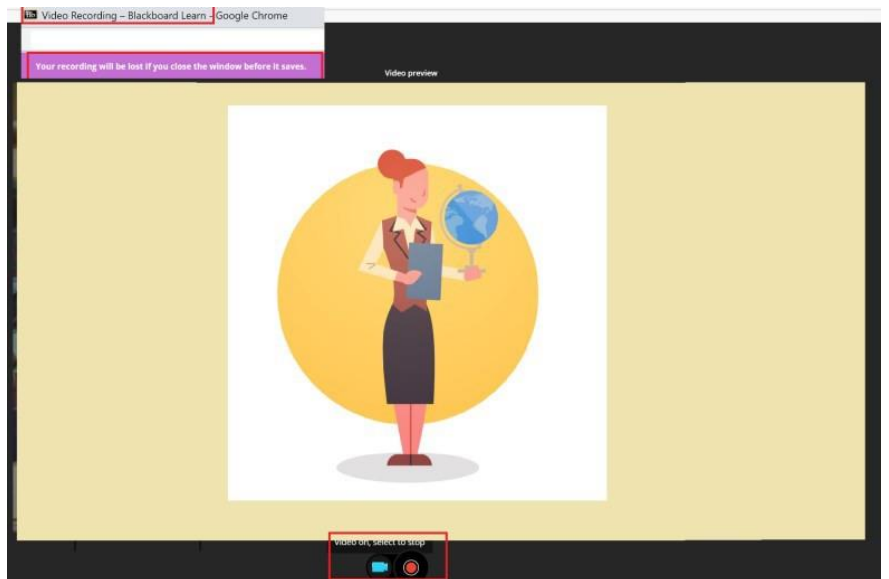

- You need to give the browser permission to use audio and video the first time you open the recording window.

- In the window that opens, select the camera icon on the recording interface to enable your camera. Without the camera enabled, the tool only records audio when you begin. When you're ready, select the Record button to capture your audio and video feedback.

- Get ready to record as the tool counts down. You can make a recording to five minutes long.

- Select Pause recording to stop and resume recording your feedback or select Stop recording to review the recording and save or discard. You can delete the recording and start over if you want to re-record.
- Select Save and exit if you're satisfied with the recording and want to share it with the student.
- Next, rename the recording and add alternative text to make it accessible to all users. The system uses the recording time and date for these fields by default.

Hi Casper,
Overall, an interesting paper, well supported and strongly opinioned. Congratulations.
See below more punctual feedback. Thanks.
